"MUNICIPAL ORDINANCE NO. 14-05
Series of 2014

RATIONALE

The 1987 Constitution (Sec. 13, Article X) states that LGUs may consolidate resources, services, and efforts for common purposes. Pursuant to this, Republic Act No. 7160 or the Local Government Code of 1991 (the Code) contains the following provision under Sec. 33: "Local government units may, through appropriate ordinances, group themselves, consolidate or coordinate their efforts, services, and resources for purposes commonly beneficial to them." Likewise, Section 35 of the Code provides that "Local government units may enter into joint ventures or such cooperative arrangements with people's and non-governmental organizations to engage in the delivery of certain basic services, capability-building and livelihood projects, and to develop local enterprises to improve productivity and income, diversify agriculture, spur rural industrialization, promote ecological balance, and enhance the social well-being of the people."

Local governance has shown that there are an increasing number of reasons to work together. There are benefits to collaboration like consolidating existing capacities and assets, and sharing and maximizing resources. The organization and formation of alliances between and among local government units (LGUs) is considered as one of the most effective strategies for local economic development. Over the years, municipalities realized that pooling of resources is a simple yet effective way to improve service delivery and maximize resources. With this inter-LGU cooperation, LGUs can pursue long-term development through supplementation and complementation of available resources.

The municipalities of Mahayag, Midsalip, Dumingag and Somint in Zamboanga del Sur and the municipalities of Siayan and Sindangan in Zamboanga del Norte having a strategic location as economic corridor have already an existing trading exchange after the establishment of a nation road network. These municipalities belong to the 609 poorest municipalities in the Philippines with a concentration of poor communities. It shared common natural resources such as mountains, forest, minerals, rivers and watershed which has become critical due to the combination of human intrusion and climate vulnerabilities resulting in high risk to barangay settlements and inability to sustain ecosystem services. The local economies of the said municipalities have been dependent on the production of copra, rice, corn and extraction of fisheries resources with limited income and employment generation. Emerging initiatives for inter-LGU alliances develops with a sharing of resources such as training facilities for organic farmers, training of technical capabilities, information and network for value chain integration in coconut, rice, corn, other staple crops and fisheries, infrastructure connectivity in terms of road network and irrigation.

Along these lines, thus it is needed to intensify the existing economic trading system, to empower the farmers to become more productive, and install organic agriculture system and social-enterprise for sustainable development to uplift these identified municipalities, working together and implement a common platform to address poverty based on increased participation of the poor and accountable governance and a responsive economic platform.

Poverty, destructive farming system and lack of capability to maximize land resources have kept farmers from improving their lives.

This is the context that the leadership of BAKAS-member municipalities responded through an inter-LGU alliance. To achieve its vision of an abundant and equitable society, the municipalities within the Sustainable Organic Agriculture Economic Corridor committed and agreed to undertake the following programs:

• Organic Rice Production

This component aimed to boost production of organically-grown rice and ensure food sufficiency in the LGU members of BAKAS.

• Coconut Production

This component aimed to maximize and utilize existing coco and coco-products. It is targeted of mainstreaming the poor to the commercial value chain of coconut by-products.
